Info

The BMW Z8 is an iconic sports car that BMW launched in 2000 as a tribute to the legendary BMW 507 from the 1950s. The design of the Z8, with its elegant lines, classic-inspired appearance, and modern technology, was developed by the famous designer Chris Bangle and his team. The Z8 was a flagship for BMW in terms of both performance and design, and it was marketed as a luxury roadster for the discerning driver.

The model was powered by a powerful 4.9-liter V8 engine, derived from the M5, which allowed the vehicle to accelerate from 0 to 100 km/h in under 5 seconds. The Z8 was equipped with a 6-speed manual transmission, although an automatic transmission was also available. The car was globally praised for its refined driving experience and ability to provide both a sporty and a comfortable ride.

Production of the Z8 was limited, with only 5,703 units produced between 2000 and 2003, making the Z8 a rare and highly sought-after classic. The model gained significant media attention due to its appearance in the film "The World Is Not Enough" (James Bond 007), where Pierce Brosnan drove the car.
