Brief model history

The Fiat X1/9 was introduced in the early 1970s and quickly stood out thanks to its sharp wedge-shaped styling, penned by Bertone. It brought exotic-looking mid-engine sports car design to an accessible price point, which made it unique in its class. Later Bertone-badged versions continued the model's story with the same unmistakable design and clever packaging.

The 1500cc engine and 5-speed transmission are especially desirable, offering more flexibility and better cruising ability. Today, the X1/9 is increasingly appreciated as an undervalued classic: beautifully designed, technically interesting, and genuinely fun to drive.

Why this X1/9?

- Desirable Bertone version
- 1500cc + 5-speed specification
- Restoration documented
- Well maintained and ready to use
- Clever packaging with excellent luggage capacity
- A comfortable, stylish and underappreciated classic
- Unique Bertone design that stands apart from the crowd
