1959 MGA – 30 Years of Driving Pleasure with Exceptional Documentation

Some classic cars tell their story not only through the way they look, but above all through the history they carry with them. This 1959 MGA is a particularly fine example.

The car is offered for sale on behalf of its Belgian owner, who purchased it in 1994 after it had been imported from California. Thanks to the dry Californian climate, the MGA provided an exceptionally sound and rust-free basis for a thorough restoration.

Shortly after purchasing the car, the owner started a complete restoration which took approximately two years. Both the bodywork and the mechanical components were comprehensively addressed, and the entire process was carefully documented. Invoices for parts and work carried out have been preserved.

What followed is perhaps even more important. The owner enjoyed the MGA for almost 30 years, using it regularly and creating countless memories with it. This was not a classic car that was restored and then simply stored away, but one that was driven, maintained and genuinely enjoyed.

Its history is documented in exceptional detail. For nearly three decades, the owner kept a meticulous logbook recording mileage, journeys, maintenance and work carried out on the car. Together with the restoration documentation and extensive collection of invoices, this provides a remarkably complete picture of the life of this MGA.

Today, the car still presents beautifully. The classic red bodywork, wire wheels and black leather interior form exactly the kind of combination that suits an MGA so well. A black soft top and tonneau cover are also included.

Mechanically, the car has always been carefully maintained. It recently received a major service, the gearbox was partially overhauled, and a new clutch and water pump were fitted. As a result, it drives exactly as a good MGA should: light, pure and immensely enjoyable.

This is the kind of classic British roadster that needs no special destination. Put the roof down, find a scenic road and simply enjoy the drive. Compact, elegant, mechanically straightforward and full of character.

A beautiful and reliable MGA with a wonderful history, long-term Belgian ownership and, above all, an exceptional documentation file covering almost 30 years of ownership and driving pleasure. Ready for its next owner to continue the story.
